As a result of the 'demolition' of 1970 the names of the fallen from the St Ann's Well Road (St Ann's parish) area were lost. Consequently we resolved to identify as many of the fallen as possible in order to right this wrong and honour them. The search revealed others honoured elsewhere, those incorrectly recorded and also many who enlisted, served and returned. Our project honours all these men.

This supplement adds details of service personnel not previously recorded and concludes the research for this centennial project.
An errata page is also attached.

Pages 1 – 13 By Servicemen's names (alphabetical)

Pages 14 – 26 By Street Name (alphabetical)

This image of the lost memorial from St Ann's Church was found shortly after the first print run of this project. The 301 names therein were researched and are now also recorded as "St Ann's Nottingham - Parish and Congregation" at <https://secure.nottinghamshire.gov.uk/RollOfHonour/WarMemorials/Details/688>

We acknowledge and thank the Nottingham City Council's Project 'Roll of Honour - St Ann's District Virtual Memorial', in particular David Nunn and his team of researchers with whom we have collaborated.

Over 270 streets have been remembered on our website at Servicemen's details have been collated within each page with links to the Commonwealth War Graves Commission's records. Links are also given for those recorded within the Nottingham City Council's Project 'Roll of Honour'.
